This is now the closest gap all year — just 1 appointment difference between the one day high and the next highest appointment volume day. Based on our historical appointment data it is extremely rare and non-existent. To have two different weekdays in the same week (like Tuesday and Friday) both register as single-day highs for appointments. Tuesday spikes typically occur only when Monday is a holiday, pushing demand forward —having Tuesday and Friday share the spotlight as “day-of-week peaks” in the same report is a statistical anomaly and stands out as a unique 2025 signal.
