Fraser's UCAT Courses

Preparing for the UCAT requires a targeted approach to improve skills and thought processes not inherently learnt within the education curriculum. Our courses are designed to support students to develop the necessary cognitive skills to achieve their best score. Depending on a student's needs, the UCAT programs at Fraser's provide students with a large variety of resources, each with a proven record of improving UCAT performance.

The UCAT courses are presented in a mix of both online and in-person to suit each student's lifestyle and learning preference. Each course is designed for teaching the skills and frameworks required for each of the UCAT sections, both in group sessions as well as in one-on-one private teaching for more specific needs.

Fraser's recognises that the student with a desire to study within the healthcare profession has a high drive in their studies and aspirations, and thus we provide students with what is actually needed: a community of tutors, the best teaching and the highest quality resources to help each student reach their potential and excel beyond their expectations.

Question Bank

The Question Bank provided to students is one of a kind; it is tailor-made to provide tangible opportunities for growth and development. As this is an admissions examination, we recognise the difference between study that can be improved upon through repetition alone, and study that requires questions that force reflection and development.

The UCAT falls into the case of the latter, which is why Fraser's invests a great deal of resources in ensuring the Question Bank is of the highest quality for our students and is the one-stop for answer development.

With over 5000 questions loaded within the Bank, this resource is an addition to study that ensures students spend less wasted time finding and answering poor quality questions, and more time developing skills and approaches during the time-poor and high-stakes era of the applicant's medical journey.

- ✓ Best for - Independent learners looking to take charge of their UCAT preparation
- ✓ Learning style - Access practice questions and UCAT resources online in your own time, and create custom quizzes based on difficulty, question type and time available
- ✓ Practise - Test yourself with mock exams and mini-mocks, determine your projected UCAT score, and learn to beat the timer with over 2000+ practice questions

Diagnostic Quiz

Do you want to get a quick understanding of how you would perform in the UCAT if you sat the exam now?

Fraser's UCAT has developed an express (15 minutes) and comprehensive (30 minute) quiz made from individually selected questions to help you do so. Every question has been designed based on their high positive predictive value of picking students who will perform well in the UCAT.

By knowing where you currently stand, you can start thinking about:

- Which sections you find easiest and which sections you find hardest
- How much time and effort you will need to get the scores you want
- What the exam involves and how it is different to school exams

After completing our diagnostic quiz, if you would like to book in a time to chat with our team about how you can prepare for the UCAT, you can do so by emailing us at info@frasersucat.com.au
