

Finding Stock Ideas

Finding Stock Ideas

RESOURCE LIST

Best Stock Screener Websites

Yahoo Finance

The king of free investing tools in our opinion. Yahoo Finance is a hub of information about the market and the companies that make it. This site is to stock investing what Google is to search.

Finviz

Another free stock screening tool, Finviz allows you to check out price charts and key metrics for any listed company.

Best News Sites

The Wall Street Journal

Often simply referred to as 'The Journal', the Wall Street Journal is an American institution. This 120+-year-old newspaper is the first place many investors go for news, opinion, and analysis on all financial topics — from the stock market to the global economy at large. ($$$ — Subscription May Be Required)

CNBC

Another world leader for business news and real-time financial market coverage, CNBC should be your first port of call for all the latest U.S. and global headlines.

Fortune

First founded in 1929, this American multinational business magazine is famous for the ranked lists it publishes, including the eponymous 'Fortune 500' ranking of companies by revenue that it has published annually since 1955. ($$$ — Subscription May Be Required)

Bloomberg

A company that's involved in multiple parts of the financial system — most notably through the Bloomberg Terminal — Bloomberg also has a significant media presence that is well respected across Wall Street, including its digital magazine. ($$$ — Subscription May Be Required)

The Information

Founded by Jessica Lessin, a former reporter for The Wall Street Journal, The Information is a subscription-based news website that focuses on in-depth, data-driven analysis and exclusive investigative stories. ($$$ — Subscription May Be Required)

The Financial Times

Excellent insights from across the pond, The Financial Times is another one of those 100+-year-old companies that are considered the gold standard in business and economic current affairs. ($$$ — Subscription May Be Required)

Best Investing Blogs

The MyWallSt Blog

From daily business and stock market news to analyzing individual stocks and an ever-expanding list of educational posts to make you a better investor, MyWallSt's own blog accommodates every type of retail investor out there.

The Collaborative Fund

Morgan Housel and Co. survey a wide range of economic and historical factors to mold and support their long-form opinion pieces, as well as give unique perspectives on macroeconomics.

The Motley Fool

A behemoth of an investing blog, news site, stock advisor, educational resource, and everything in between all rolled into one.

A Wealth of Common Sense

In this blog, Ben Carlson approaches the art (or science, depending on your perspective) of investing in a very accessible way.

Farnam Street

Not your ordinary investing blog, Shane Parish's Farnam Street delves into the human psyche and asks how we operate.

The Big Picture

The Big Picture, founded by Barry L. Ritholtz, has been around since 2003 and has garnered a loyal following since, mostly thanks to Ritholtz's no-nonsense approach to investing.

No Mercy/No Malice

Scott Galloway has become one of the most well-known commentators on the modern market, and each week, the NYU professor shares his take on tech and relationships in the digital economy.

Best Investing Books

'One Up On Wall Street' by Peter Lynch

This book is the cornerstone of our investment strategy here at MyWallSt, and one that our staff practices in their personal portfolios as well. 'One Up On Wall Street' is a must for anyone thinking of getting started in buying stocks.

'The Psychology of Money' by Morgan Housel

While many financial books can feel bogged down in figures and charts, Morgan Housel's inaugural book is one of the easiest and most-relatable books about managing your wealth that you could find. Condensed into a compact 20 lessons, Housel draws from relevant real-life experiences and gives them an insightful spin.

'The Intelligent Investor' by Benjamin Graham

The great Warren Buffett christened 'The Intelligent Investor' as "the best book on investing ever written". This book applies a common-sense approach to the stock market which still holds true today, 70 years after it was first published.

'The Four: The Hidden DNA of Amazon, Apple, Facebook, and Google' by Scott Galloway

The Four' revolves around Amazon, Apple, Facebook, and Google and how the companies became such an integral part of modern life, their seeming infallibility, and their ability to recover from their ever-growing series of missteps along the way. Far from a love story, Scott Galloway asks the tough questions about the so-called "Four Horsemen" and how they are viewed in today's society.

'100 Baggers' by Christopher Mayer

In this book, Christopher Mayer breaks down the mythical 100-bagger, meaning for every $1 you invest in the stock, it returns $100. It was inspired by '100 to 1 in the Stock Market' by Thomas Phelps, which was written in 1972, and gives a modern twist to the foundation laid by Phelps.

'A Random Walk Down Wall Street' by Burton Malkiel

Self-titled as the “time-tested strategy for successful investing”, Malkiel’s book is slated by many as a necessity before starting your 401k or managing your own portfolio. The title of the book is in reference to the Random Walk Hypothesis, which essentially states that changes in the stock market are random and can’t be predicted.

'Blink: The Power of Thinking Without Thinking' by Malcolm Gladwell

How many companies have you looked at, before conducting any serious due diligence, and just had a gut feeling about them? How many of these gut feelings turned out to be right? ‘Blink’ tries to explain this phenomenon, closely examining the power of instincts, hunches, and those aforementioned gut feelings.

'Bad Blood' by John Carreyrou

As investing books go, ‘Bad Blood’ does not conform to the norm — it’s a tale of fraud and deceit surrounding the inexhaustible search for the next unicorn. The main takeaways we can draw from this book are: invest in what you know and don’t believe the hype.

Best Investing Twitter Accounts

@MyWallStHQ

The home of successful investing — follow our Twitter account for all of the latest news, commentary, and analysis on the U.S. stock market, as well as some top-quality memes.

@emmetlsavage

My own personal Twitter account where you can track my own progress as an investor, the things I’m reading, as well as see the odd picture of my dog Bowie!

@LizAnnSonders

It’s best to have the most knowledgeable writers in your Twitter feed, and chief investment strategist at Charles Schwab, Liz Ann Sonders, is just that.

@morganhouse1

Author of the Collaborative Fund blog, Morgan Housel has a unique view on the concepts which underpin the stock market. He’s definitely a big-picture kind of guy.

@charliebilello

Charlie Bilello’s research leads to some fascinating statistics which he posts regularly. This Twitter account is all business with a stream of line charts and historical data.

@eWhispers

Earnings Whispers should be your first port of call when earnings season peeks its head out after three months of hibernation. Its detailed weekly calendars of the most pertinent earnings reports in the markets are a fantastic way to stay informed.

@profalloway

Brash, straight-talking analysis. A very active tweeter, Scott Galloway's feed is a melody of articles, retweets and his own hard-hitting views on the current issues that beleaguer the technology industry.

@TMFJMo

Jason Moser is a senior analyst at the Motley Fool. In his own words: "I find stocks that make money & tell the world about them." What's not to like about that?

@awealthofcs

Author of 'A Wealth of Common Sense' and host of a podcast of the same name, Ben Carlson's Twitter feed is a perfect blend of expert investing advice and a sharp wit.

@stratechery

Author Ben Thompson posts his weekly free article from the Stratechery newsletter. These are incredible pieces of analysis and research and signing up for the paid service is one of the smartest investments you can make in yourself.

Best Investing Podcasts

Stock Club by MyWallSt

Stock Club is a podcast hosted in our own studio here at MyWallSt HQ where the team discusses the current market news, pitches stocks from our shortlist, and demystifies the stock market with its jargon buster section.

Motley Fool Money

Stocks, stocks, and more stocks. Motley Fool Money is a rundown of all the stock market news to close out the week, served with a side of commentary from the Fool's expert analysis team.

Chit Chat Money

Chit Chat Money is a great casual listen about the world of investing. The two hosts are incredibly well-read and are usually joined by a stellar guest or two to discuss the comings and goings of the market.

Planet Money by NPR

The economy explained — a simple mission, an elaborate execution. Planet Money has been around for more than 10 years and has over 900 episodes in its back catalog. NPR releases an episode of Planet Money twice a week, although new episodes are sometimes interspersed with classic episodes from the vault. Its range of topics and level of detail is extraordinary.

FYI – For Your Innovation

Brought to you by ARK Invest, FYI is a high-brow, intellectual take on future-defining technologies and the disrupting innovators that are pioneering them. The ARK research team was made famous in 2020 for some truly outstanding performances, and this podcast is another way of getting an insight into the company and its processes.

Pivot

Scott Galloway and Kara Swisher unleash their dark humor and dry wit upon the week's technology news, which gives rise to some bold predictions. Pivot is a great place to get some frank and honest analysis of all things technology, business, and politics.

Business Daily by BBC World Service

With Business Daily, the BBC performs a deep dive into one particular news topic every day. These topics vary widely from the worrying levels of consumer debt in China to shareholders' growing impatience with Uber, yet every episode serves to give you your daily update on the world economy.

Masters of Scale

Reid Hoffman is one of the co-founders of LinkedIn, former COO of PayPal, and a partner at Greylock Partners. He also boasts a seat on the boards of Airbnb, Convoy, Edmodo, and Microsoft. I know what you're thinking: why does this guy need to do a podcast? The answer is that he doesn't have to, he just loves doing it.

Get Started: The Beginner's Guide To The Stock Market

A second entry on the list for MyWallSt, but we're more than happy to include our latest 'Get Started' series. This 5-part series dives into the basics of getting your investing journey started.

FT News Briefing

Short and sweet is the easiest way to describe the FT News Briefing. It provides a top-level rundown of the global, economic, and business news of the day. Plug into this podcast on your morning commute and you'll arrive at work ahead of the curve.

Best Investing Newsletters

The Daily Update by Stratechery

Written by Ben Thompson, one of the greatest technology writers we investors can avail of, The Daily Update is roughly 2,000 words on the day's biggest stories, which focuses a lot more on the why rather than the what. ($$$ — Subscription May Be Required)

Morningstar

I'm bending the rules here a bit for Morningstar as it is quite a bit more than just a newsletter. However, it is an incredibly useful and far-reaching tool for any investor looking to craft their investing strategy. ($$$ — Subscription May Be Required)

Fastball

For those that are tired of getting dozens of notifications every morning that all say the same thing, then Fastball is the newsletter for you. It brings the most important news of the day for investors, cutting through all of the noise in our uniquely fun and jargon-free style, all in under three minutes a day.

Morning Brew

The perfect side dish for any investor's breakfast plate, The Morning Brew lets you start the day ahead of the curve. It collates the day's top stories and delivers them to your inbox.

Finimize

Let the news come to you. This is basically Finimize's mission statement. They will send you the two biggest business news articles from the global economy every day.

Best Investing TikTok Accounts

MyWallSt \(@MyWallSt\)

MyWallSt's TikTok account provides our followers with investing tips in a humorous fashion to encourage our viewers to own their financial future. In our wholly unbiased opinion, it's one of the best investing accounts on the popular platform.

Humphrey Yang \(@humphreytalks\)

Yang has an impressive 1.2 million followers who enjoy watching his content about personal finance and making money. The creator is most famous for showing Amazon's founder Jeff Bezos' wealth using grains of rice. Other popular videos of his include him showing how Bitcoin works and the true cost of a Tesla car.